Source of the Information

The information presented in the book and delivered on the website originates from cosmic civilisations. There are many other books and sources for messages from other dimensions, their "purity" however is sometimes unwittingly contaminated by the channel or the writer's own views and mind. Great effort has therefore gone into seeking to eliminate this from affecting the material here presented.

The website represents a very unique opportunity to ask questions of interest to scientists, architects, engineers, planners, governments, any of us. As many of the answers that lie in our future, effectively already exist in the cosmic present, we will be able to secure advice and support should we opt to make preparations for the turbulence ahead : however, only relevant questions will provide us with useful and practical answers. In our free-will universe we have to be the first to ask the questions.

But, most importantly of all, humanity needs to recognise love as the main driver of the universe, and needs to develop inner peace; without these the time ahead will be much tougher than it needs to be. Learning to understand loving and to develop inner peace can only be achieved individual by individual, no external help can be offered.

The Main Message

Planet Earth is undergoing a transformation which, while indeed it has been accelerated by humanity's short-sighted actions with little regard to our natural environment, nevertheless was inevitable and is now unstoppable.

Therefore humanity's focus should be on pre-emptive action aimed at easing the conditions for those who will be living through the period of turbulence ahead. All action undertaken from now on needs to be carefully and unemotionally evaluated for effectiveness – switching off extra light-bulbs is of limited use, whereas planting and preserving woods, forests and trees is vital for the longer term.

Key Points of Advice

- Do not fear – develop a wider perspective of life, death and conscious continuance
- Recognize that love is the main driver of the universe
- Develop inner peace
- Humanity is encouraged to develop its telepathic abilities in order to be able to communicate with not only their cosmic cousins, but also amongst themselves when our traditional means of communication have collapsed, as we are told they will

- Many cosmic civilisations have made it known that they are available to help those willing to reach out to them
- Ignore central government and organisations – they are least well equipped to deal with the changes ahead : instead concentrate on developing self-sufficient, self-administering smaller communities
- Plant trees
- Be open to new healing modalities
- Trust that all is part of a bigger plan
- Know that peace, love and harmony are as powerful as anarchy and greed, it simply depends on how many on this planet embrace one or the other
- seriously look at the need for adjustments in the financial system, education, social institutions, etc. - more of the same is not an option : those who prepare will stand a better chance to emerge strengthened after the period of upheaval

Precautionary Principle

The very nature of the changes and events ahead makes it difficult to be certain of dates and events. Add to this the difference in time – earth time is linear and consists of the units of time as we know them; cosmic time is non linear and embraces much longer time-frames, after considerable discussion, there appears to be agreement that 4,000 earth years approximate 1 cosmic year.

With the benefit of the warnings received from outside our time-dimension, from what is effectively our future, it behoves humanity to apply the precautionary principle and prepare for the worst occurring in the shortest possible time.

Recommended Action

A team of planners and professionals needs to assemble early to define & design the optimum size and nature of a self-sufficient community, with a view to building a first such model community within the next 3-4 years.

Acknowledgement

Although just about every one of humanity's great books is based on material transmitted from non-human sources, it is acknowledged that for many the idea of such disembodied communication remains alien, even frightening.

We therefore extend an invitation, via our site, to any scientist, planner or official to ask questions of our cosmic cousins to which we do not have the answers, and which would help in the important survival task ahead.
